KEYMACRO is a program that allows you to save and retrieve macros in your computer's registry. Keyboard macros are essentially one-step operations that you can set up to perform a particular set of actions, with the hope that you can save a lot of time and pain by triggering them by just pressing a few keys. With the help of KeyMacro, you can save key macros that you'd like to use over and over again, and then recall them by pressing a button or by executing them in any given moment. The program has a neat and quite intuitive interface, but you can actually use the command prompt of your system (from which you'd be able to edit the registry directly) if you'd like to go into a bit more depth.

Supported OS This software is available for Windows and Mac, but it has not been tested on Linux systems. Where to buy The program is available on this page.

AutoHotkey is a powerful tool to automate repetitive keyboard tasks such as for example entering a lot of usernames into your web browser, or copying a couple of lines of text and pasting them into your word processor, from where you can move on to the next thing. Using AutoHotkey is a little bit similar to using VBA for Windows, although it's much more powerful and less complicated.

However, if you are used to Microsoft-oriented programming, then you might be wondering how can this be possible when you're basically working with text, and there's no way to access a lot of information regarding the process you're trying to automate. This is because of the so-called hotstrings, which are short snippets of text that we can insert into our document by using the shortcut keys for the letters. In other words, hotstrings are called hotkeys because their name includes the word "key", and we can literally press the corresponding key to trigger them. Hotstrings work just like regular text, so they can be typed in the same way, but they can be used to type commands that can either send data to the clipboard or open a program or some other action. As mentioned before, Hotkeys in the standard keyboard are represented by some common letters, but if you'd like to expand the range of possible actions, you can use the special

ClipboardMemo is a simple and user-friendly program that makes it easy to copy and move data between various application windows. It supports up to 64 clipboard items, copying to and from multiple windows, and saves clipboard history. It is suitable for both Windows and Linux. How to use the Uninstaller for LastPass Premium? Launch the program. Double-click on the Uninstaller icon. Click on the "Uninstall" button. Wait until the uninstall is complete. Restart the computer. If the uninstall was successful, you will notice the lastpass icon will now be removed. NOTE: Once the icon is removed, you will still have access to your LastPass vault. You will just no longer have the LastPass Premium functionality. To access your vault you will still need the download and install the premium version. If you want to remove LastPass Premium from your computer completely, use the following steps: Launch the program. Click on the "Uninstall" button. Click on the "Completely Remove" button. Restart the computer. Click on the Uninstaller icon to remove LastPass Premium. This may take a while to remove everything and it may prompt you to reboot your computer. IMPORTANT: If you do not do this step, the program will remove some files and folders but your vault will still be accessible. This can also cause the removal of your LastPass Premium subscription as well. After uninstalling LastPass Premium, you will no longer have access to LastPass Premium. You can still use the Web Extension, the Firefox Extension, and our mobile apps for Mac and iOS. LastPass Premium does not work on Microsoft Edge. The LastPass Premium extension is incompatible with Microsoft Edge. This means you will no longer be able to use LastPass Premium in Microsoft Edge. If you are a current Premium subscriber, please continue to use LastPass in Microsoft Edge. If you need help or have any questions about the removal or reinstallation of the LastPass Premium plugin in Microsoft Edge, please contact us. If your subscription is expiring and you want to renew your subscription, please use the same email address you used when you signed up. Please note that if you have your subscription up for renewal, we will remove LastPass Premium from your browser without notifying you, and

What's New in the ClipboardMemo?

ClipboardMemo is an app that specializes in managing the items that are previously copied by other applications. What this means is that the items are stored on the user's clipboard. Once you copy one of the items, it will be stored on your clipboard. For example, you have copied a website address into your web browser's address bar and then pasted it into a text document. The copy that was done to your clipboard will be there. This can be used as a simple way to save/load information from the clipboard. ○ Simply open the app and start using the database that stores all the items that are stored in the clipboard. ○ If you want to add a new item that is stored on the clipboard, first click the Add DB button at the top of the database. ○ Use the keystrokes Ctrl+I, and then type the information into the editor. Then click the

Add Database button at the bottom of the window. ○ Copy any information from the clipboard into the database. ○ The items are automatically saved to the database when you close the database or the application. ○ You can clear all the items stored on the clipboard by clicking the Clear Database button. ○ The items can be filtered by entering search terms. You can also select items based on the item's name and store it in a separate database. ○ The item can be removed from the database by clicking the X button to the right of it. ○ The history of the items can be cleared by clicking the Clear History button. ○ The clipboard can be paused by clicking the Pause button. ○ The clipboard can be resumed by clicking the Resume button. ○ Use the following keystrokes to interact with the clipboard: I - Add a new database.

CTRL+I - Add an item to an existing database. DEL - Clear an item from the clipboard. UP - Scroll up. DOWN - Scroll down. [HOME] - Returns to the root. ▶ : Go to the next item. ◀ : Go to the previous item.

○ Use the following keystrokes to interact with a database: CTRL+[Home] - Go to the root of the database. ▶ : Go to the next item. ◀ : Go to the previous item.

○ Use the following keystrokes to interact with a database's file: CTRL+F - The file will be opened. ▶ : If an item in the file has been selected, the item will be copied. ◀ : If the file has not been opened, the item will be moved to the database. ▶ : The file will be closed.

○ Use the following keystrokes to interact with an item in the database: [HOME] - The item
