ProShow.Producer.Gold.V7.0.Serial.Key.Gen.ProShow Proshow Gold Keygen Proshow Producer Gold 7.0.3527 Serial Key., and hang tags, etc) Multiply by cost of wrapping (around $.22/lb or $.24 - $.28/lb), plus cost of stamping, etc. Take out cost of shipping/handling/billing, and you're at $.02 - $.05/lb That's your wholesale cost. You also have to consider that the "fun" in your line of work is the profit - the margin. No one's happy or satisfied with a margin of no more than $.25/lb. In order for you to make a decent profit on 100lb bags of Nut Roast, you have to move them quickly and efficiently, and sell them for $.30/lb. And the price you sell them for has to be no more than 75% of your cost. I know, I know. It's entirely possible that I'm completely wrong about this, but I'm trying to put in a general order of cost factors. I guess my point is that I'm going to be way more than a little bit pissed if I buy bags for $.75 and end up getting $.20/bag. That's the question here. I don't think I can stretch my margin that thin unless I'm buying large (100lb+) bags. Yves, I can discuss it with you tomorrow. Also, if you have not already seen it, I have sent a paper to you from Ken Lay's executive session with Jeff Skilling.
