Another example is the so-called "Long" mode for 5K resolutions and the ability to multitask. This is where the refresh rate of the screen and the picture quality of the game overlap. The comparison in the graph is based on the author's personal experience, the first tests, and video benchmarks from various websites. The newly announced Future of Farming conference, which is being held next week in Minneapolis, will bring together leaders from the agriculture and technology sectors to explore the huge opportunities and challenges facing the future of food. The Future of Farming conference will include presentations from industry leaders from across the country, such as the CEO of Peace Corps, the CEO of Progressive Grocer, the CEO of Averitt, the CEO of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, the CEO of Impact Investments for Agriculture (a member of the CropLife America Sustainable Agriculture Business Coalition), and more. "We're excited about what this conference means for the future of American agriculture and the overall future of food," said Clay Weill, CropLife America's Director of Sustainability. "We're pleased that a number of prominent companies have made commitments to work with us to contribute to the discussions, and we look forward to sharing all of the good things that are going on across the country." As part of the Future of Farming conference, attendees will be offered an opportunity to tour a University of Minnesota Center for Sustainable Agri-business facility with its demonstration kitchen that produces local, healthy and sustainable meat, chicken, fish and eggs, and in the other day of the conference, attendees will tour the Midwest Harvest Institute, which is dedicated to research on sustainable agriculture. "More than 70 percent of our customers are cities, counties and states," said Tad Richards, CEO of Peace Corps. "So our approach to sustainability is designed to align with government policies and priorities, helping them to implement sustainable programs while strengthening their own communities and economies." Peace Corps is partnering with CropLife America for the inaugural Future of Farming conference to share its unique perspective on agriculture. "Climate change is a reality that is already making an impact on farmers and farmers' organizations around the world," said Dan Meinke, CropLife America's Sustainability Director. "We're very proud that our supporters, including the Peace Corps, have
