I need to create a chart with 3 bars and a simple curve within those bars. I have tried to nest rectangles but I don't know how to nest a curve within those rectangles. A: Yes, it is possible, but first I'd suggest to make the effort to learn more about D3. Here are two useful posts on using D3 for creating charts: What is D3 in the first place? Building beautiful charts with SVG and D3 ... and a number of others. Another thing you'll need is to understand how the D3 function.append() is used, and I suggest you to have a look at this short example, we'll use to explore some elements of the API (credit goes to Dan Wheeler on the imgur link). I think it will take you some time to grasp how the example works, but I strongly advise you to try and do it by yourself before reading the full code, as in my opinion the code isn't the most intuitive. What we have here is a HTML structure very similar to yours, so in theory, it should be easy for you to adapt it to your needs. In particular, you'll need to understand the two
