Effects of fosmids identified by cloning on chromosomal and mitotic stability of Klebsiella pneumoniae. Chromosomal stability and homologous recombination of Klebsiella pneumoniae were examined after fosmid cloning and transformation, and the results were compared with those of plasmid cloning. The chromosomal and transformant stability of strains containing three different cloning vectors constructed using pUC19 and fosmids from K. pneumoniae M5a1 showed high stability in each strain. However, low stability was observed in strains containing a large pBR322-based plasmid, demonstrating the importance of the vector size in plasmid cloning.Q: Execute JQuery when Laravel sends the response I have an Laravel application which has a query that takes about half a second and in that time I need to show something. How can I execute a function when I send back a response from Laravel? It should depend on the type of the request, if it was a post or a get or a delete. Is it possible to execute a function when Laravel sends back a response? Thanks A: There is a custom event "finish" which you can subscribe to: App::detectHttpMethod()->filter()->then(function() { if (Request::is('put')) { //stuff } if (Request::is('post')) { //stuff } //... if (Request::is('delete')) { //stuff } }); Then there is also the hack of having a $response in your route middleware: Route::get('test', function() { $response = Response::make(); $response->getBody()->setStatusCode(200); return $response; }); Then you can do this in your javascript:

Knowledge-based face recognition method based on multi-learning vector coding. In this paper, an improved knowledge-based method based on multi-learning vector coding (MLVSC) is proposed for face recognition. In this method, the images of different subjects are preprocessed with multi-scale joint bilateral histogram equalization (MSJBHE). The histograms of the regions of interest (ROI) of the preprocessed images are extracted and concatenated to form a multi-learning vector for the recognition of the subjects. The proposed method is evaluated with publicly available database, VGG Face, and the results are compared with the ones obtained by state-of-the-art approaches. Experimental results show that the proposed method achieves promising performance, and is much more accurate than other methods.Acute ventriculitis as the initial presentation of acute myelogenous leukemia. The authors report a 17-year-old adolescent who presented with fever, headache, nausea, vomiting and mild mental status changes that were initially thought to be due to a cerebral infection. Acute myelogenous leukemia was diagnosed as a complication of infection with a rare organism, Mycobacterium chelonae. In cases of febrile infection, a reasonable differential diagnosis includes infection with bacteria, fungi or mycobacteria. The occurrence of these organisms may also suggest an immunologic etiology.Fraternity of Osteopathic Medicine The Fraternity of Osteopathic Medicine (FOM) is the official osteopathic medical organization in the United States. The group operates through 19 state osteopathic medical associations and some specialized groups of osteopathic physicians that are not directly connected to an osteopathic state medical association. The organization was founded in 1947. History The FOM was founded in 1947. In 1971, the FOM founded a joint venture with the American College of Osteopathic Surgeons. It was named the College of Osteopathic Medical Practitioners. In 2004, the organization launched a new logo and website.
