I usually write news and reviews so I decided to give it a go in my spare time. I never expected to have a decent audience that uses the things I write about. So far I am very happy with the outcomes and it is satisfying to meet others that share similar interests. Google It came about when I was a simple student studying computer engineering in Bournemouth University. I had never been that much of a computer person and was a self confessed IT illiterate. However, due to having a friend who owned a PC of his own I jumped on the chance to access the Internet and explore the vast world of available software. I downloaded my first, but it was never finished. I had to return the download because the â□□authorâ□□ company I had downloaded it from closed down. The only software I had was a demo version of PC download Manager 3. I had to see what it would do. So I downloaded it but I was not satisfied with the demo version so I decided I would do my own, but with a greater goal in mind. This is a UNIX based download manager for Windows. It was originally designed for downloading warez, but since the problems of piracy are on the rise, I decided to make it available to the public. I know many of you might ask, â□□Why would you download warez

when you could easily get the software by paying the developers (the authors) of the software?â Well, unfortunately this is not always the case. There are many developers that choose to get their money from other means than the traditional means of selling their products. This is their way of saying � d0c515b9f4
