Desperados III: Part 3 takes place in the most popular location of the game: the land of the vultures, Valeria. The game opens with a new saga, the dramatic song of your comrade, the wise old vulture and mastermind behind the whole affair, Hector. Your task is to make it back to home base alive. Your treacherous allies have put all your cards on the table and now it's your turn to play. Yet they are not so foolish as to think that you were standing idly by. Your motive will be revealed. The game also has a new type of mission: the "mission". The 4 "hero" units are now accompanied by a helper, a worker or a scout. Each has their own special task to perform and is different from the other in battle and in movement. There is also a new special-purpose weapon: explosive shot. (Explosive shot does not harm the one who fires it, but he or she instead makes an extra turn.

Key Game Features - Game system improvements: Many characters received new animations, skins and moves; new effects such as smoke or fire were added; new base buildings have also been added. The main goal of these improvements was to provide the player with a more improved version of the previous installment.

- Improved game mechanics: Some elements from Game of War and Secret of Mana have been added, such as specific game mechanics for each unit, more options for unit control, better management of resources, the introduction of a hit marker and a special formula for determining damage on units.
- New territory and new gameplay: The game takes place in the new territory of Valeria and you can now view the map from a bird's eye view. You can also now see the player's unique floating marker at all times. There are also new special abilities and the resource management system has been simplified.
- A new storyline: Hector's storyline takes place in the most popular location of the game. You will participate in the events that follow the story of the first two parts and will need to face off with the traitorous ally, Rosie.
- Game improvements: Units are now more agile and can move more freely and thus make it possible to play faster, and also to make more efficient use of resources.
- 10 new characters: Kevin, Noa, Jaime, Alvaro, Javier, Nelson, Pablo, Sean, Zorba and Grey all have a brand new skin

By George Williams As you enter the Compound, stay to the right and go down the first corridor on your right. There's a trundling if you're in a vehicle. It's a pair of unfortunate humans trying to dump their possessions out of a garbage compactor. You can usually skip safely on an evac, but you may be tempted to either kill or incapacitate them anyway. Any survivors whose compactor just ate them are angry and not innocent, but it's not worth the risk of actually running across one. To the left of them is the door to the Chicken Nest; it's usually closed, but can be opened for a little ventilation if it becomes too claustrophobic down there. A door to the right is the Medical Clinic; you can pass it by if you don't mind showing off your penchant for murder. At the end of the corridor, wall-mounted Isotopes have been scrambled. If you're lucky, you've got matches, but try not to destroy any until after you kill everyone in the room. They can blow up and ruin everything around them and, if they set fire to the Towing Compartment, it will damage your vehicle. A few doors down the corridor, another Isotope has been thrown. It's dead center of the hallway and can only be accessed by going left. You should be able to find there a Bouncer in a wheelchair. If you wanted to go skipping (but couldn't find reliable terminal enhancement) you can knock him out with an Uzi, then find a vending machine in the Towing Compartment and take the Soylent Cola granola bar and some of the water bottles he was supplying to the prisoners. If it's been long enough since the Compound was officially opened, you may see an animal corpse; scavengers will have poked through a ventilation hole in the ceiling and set up shop. If you happen to be leaving the Compound on an extermination run, you could lure them away from their cache so they don't redecorate the walls, but don't do that in a full Compound. You have many damn friends to deal with. This room is full of dead bodies. You should be able to easily recognize them; most of the corpses will have been scavengers. This room is for incarceration; you'll have to climb over one of the dead guards to reach it. It's a big room with more corpses and a closed door that looks
