What's new in Brick People:

, Mourning Children The Wake: Mourning Father, Mourning Mother, Mourning Children (1974) is a collection of three novels published in 1974 by David Malouf: Orotaa the Centre of the World, The Middle Passage and The Prodigal. They describe the love between Semele (Aurelia May), a poet, and Isaias (Benjamin Oswell). Semele and Isaias are separated by death. Semele goes to the land of the dead and is reunited with her lover. Their daughter Orotaa (Dorothy Wall-Murphy) is also reunited with her father. The collected works were published under the provision of an Australian Literary Fund award. Malouf had previously published a novel, Flight from the Receiving Line (1971) which had won a Walkabout Book of the Year Award. This award provided the money to publish the three novels as a collection. The Wake is the twelfth book Malouf published, and is the last book he wrote in the first person. Some commentators have said that it was influenced by Yeats, Pound, Conrad and Shakespeare. The Wake was republished in 2015 by Penguin Books Australia. This was part of Penguin's "The Penguin Classics Series: Best Australian Novels" project that was launched in 2015 with a range of authors' books published by Penguin. The first volume (including The Wake) was released on 22 September 2016. Plot summary The Wake is made up of three interconnected tales, written in the first person. A Father for Orotaa (1975) The first story, 'A Father for Orotaa', was published in 1975 as the title story of The Wake. It is narrated by Dorothy Wall-Murphy, a 14-year-old English girl living in the English rural town of Wicksford. She is an only child and lives with her parents in the town farm. Wall-Murphy's father 'Bunny' was a farmer and after surviving a hitch-hiker accident he felt obliged to take in foster children. Wall-Murphy's father has forgotten all his duties towards her. He forces her into a marriage with a son of another farmer. Wall-Murphy refuses to marry and decides to run away. She fears that she will have no one to go back to, but she manages to stumble into a family, the Edwards, that only have one child in tow, Orotaa. Orotaa
