be the first to admit I'm a bit of a secret snob. You're only as good as what you eat, and I don't eat burgers. I eat only the finest; steak, sushi, chicken, lobster, everything. And I love it all, but I just don't like to eat it off the same plate. I thought I could get away with it in a restaurant, I was wrong. The waitress, Jenny, can't stop looking at my plate of food. I've had this feeling all day, she's taking a mental picture of every bite. I have to make sure that no one knows about my secret hobby. How am I going to keep this from everyone? Piggy Monsters is back! Play as Piggy and his buddy, Suzy, in a good-natured exploration of a wonder world filled with goopy, squishy, bouncy goodness. Run across 100+ colorful and unique levels and discover collectable pigs, super powerups, and new game modes like Bubble Blast, Double Dash, Turbo, and much more. Full version features: -60+ Challenging levels across 12 unique themed worlds -4 Game Modes, including Arcade, Endless, Master and Tutorial -Power Ups - including the Pig Max Power up and Super Suzy -4 Special Herbal Candy Cones for Suzy to consume -A "Premium" purchase provides unlockable in-game characters and new game modes -Leaderboards for each mode and many more achievements -No Ads Compatible

A typical customer review, and generally accurate. From what I've read there is a lot of problem with the game's gameplay in both PVP and PVE. Some MMO players might not like this genre, but I like that freedom to do what I like. Some players might not like your choice of other players. Corrupt is about doing what you want, and not being hindered by some stupid rule, but some players who don't have fun with this sort of freedom might have a problem with it. 9.0/10 Jiggly GameplayCorrupt: A nice observation, with what I think is a good point. Unfortunately some people aren't as smart as you think they are, and might take it as a personal attack. One of the biggest problems with the game is the stupidity of the rules. Since the game is free to play, the playerbase is pretty small, and not many have heard of these common problems, or even understand how they work, and it can be hard to find these people, and easier to let things go. Still, a nice observation. 8.8/10 8.8/10 20.2/10 Topper I like Corrupt, but some rules are stupid. 7.6/10 Badm8e Plain and simple. More intelligent and experienced players will join Corrupt, but only as they like. 8.6/10 SnakeyHorse Okay, I have to say that I've found this quite amusing as a "lo-fi" game, but seriously, it's stupidly easy. If you don't know how to do the fastest method of dealing with someone, you're in for a rude awakening.

Basically, it's a dogfight in the sky, and you have to be quick to get your target before they get you.

7.3/10 p.f. The game does have its merits. Its graphics are simply stunning and I love the bizzare open world. The gameplay is fun and the ability to customize your own missions is definitely an added plus. When I first started playing the game I wanted to be the best, but after a few missions and some time I've learned to relax and not try to be the best and instead I become a casual player, much like a couch potato, just kicking back and going for the thrills with those around me. If you're looking for a quick 2 hour play-time, Corrupt is along the way to further your investigations, but beware, even a little time spent unraveling the lore will give way to the laws of entropy... The game plays out much like a “sandbox” style puzzler such as Myst. You have a limited amount of in-game time to explore a “world” and solve a series of puzzles (metaphorically speaking, of course). Your time is limited, and you must use it wisely! Your time limits can be ignored at your own peril! That might sound like a good or bad idea depending on how you take it. Each level will have some form of a “goal”. You will have to solve a series of puzzles, all logically linked together, to reach the goal. These puzzles will often make use of your time limits in clever ways. There is also a condition called “simulation” that is activated when too much time is spent on a puzzle. This is represented by a simple clock counting down. If the simulation clock runs out of time, the simulation will fail, and the simulation clock will be set back, and you will be shown the next puzzle. When the simulation clock reaches 0, you will automatically fail, and you will lose time. You can only fail once per map, and so you must ensure that your simulation clock does not exceed the time limits of the map. However, more dangerous than just being “tied up” are things like “sparks” and “traps”. Sparks are physics based puzzles that require some dexterity on your part, and will tie up your time. Traps will usually be the most difficult puzzles in the game, often requiring many tries. Traps can be anything from extremely simple puzzles to full-fledged platforming challenges. Traps will tie up time, and if a trap is activated, your simulation clock will be set back and your time limit will be reduced by a minute. Traps have a large variety of effects, from simple inconveniences to rapid time drains. Traps
