

7a1d60d0391. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a quick release connector which is used to connect a plurality of strip-shaped or cord-shaped material such as wire harnesses or tube-shaped material such as wires, tubes, cords, etc. 2. Description of the Prior Art In recent years, an increasing number of automobiles are provided with different electrical instruments such as a variety of displays, meters and the like, and the number of signal lines is increased accordingly.

Accordingly, a plurality of connecting portions is provided for connecting each of those different electrical instruments to a fixed part, such as an instrument panel, a console box, a center pillar or the like of an automobile body. In the connecting portion, a female connector and a male connector are commonly used.

In the female connector, a plurality of terminal receiving chambers are formed along a side of a housing so that the terminal receiving chambers are arranged at a predetermined pitch in a direction of a width of the housing. Each of the terminal receiving chambers is closed at a rear portion by a wall surface which extends obliquely upward and is provided with a window at a predetermined position, and each of the terminals is inserted into a corresponding terminal receiving chamber by fitting into an inserting opening of the corresponding terminal receiving chamber through the window. In the male connector, a plurality of terminal receiving chambers are formed so as to correspond to those formed in the female connector, and the terminal receiving chambers are closed by a cover plate.

The plurality of terminal receiving chambers are arranged at a predetermined pitch in a direction of a width of the housing. The cover plate is fixed to the housing with a fixing bolt. Since the female connector and the male connector are repeatedly used in many cases, it is required to reduce an insertion resistance for the terminals when the female connector and the male connector are connected, and to improve a releasability of the female connector and the male connector. In the conventional female connector and the male connector, however, when those connectors are connected, a plurality of terminal receiving chambers in the female connector and a plurality of terminal receiving chambers in the male connector are arranged side by side in the direction of the width of the housing. Consequently, an electric contact area between the terminals of the female connector and the terminals of the male connector is increased. As a result, the insertion resistance at the time of connection is increased, and also the number of times of connection is increased accordingly. The present invention has been developed in view of the above problem
