The aim of the HyperMotion engine is to use the full potential of the player's 3D avatar while displaying highly realistic actions with believable physical responses. Some of the improvements seen in the engine are the new AI system, which creates more intelligent opponents who can counter your tactics; more intuitive handling and more responsive controls; smarter goalkeepers with greater tactical awareness and the ability to learn from their mistakes; and more innovative new attacking play that you will be able to do away from the ball in open spaces. In the team game modes, you will be able to command the whole team from the coach's seat. Manage tactics, analyse the game and use the right strategy - only in this way will you be able to achieve victory. FIFA 22 introduces a new control system allowing players to use more touch feedback on the controller and the ball. The new system offers total control of the ball, which means that players can shoot, pass, dribble or head the ball by tilting the console, and the style of dribbling will vary depending on the actions of the player. The new controls offer players a more natural feeling of control, and will produce more authentic game experiences with players feeling comfortable throughout the game. All players will also be supported by Touch Pads. These aim to give players the feeling of passing and shooting by operating directly on the player's own body. Using the buttons or the touch pad, players will feel how comfortable it is to pass, dribble or head the ball. FIFA 22 introduces a new goalkeepers' AI system, which means that goalkeepers can now make more accurate saves than ever before. There are three new save types available in FUT: heads, gloves and feet. You will have to make perfect saves to maintain your clean sheet. FIFA 22 will feature the new "Pitchmaker" support system which automatically generates new pitch spaces from open area of the pitch and make players change their playstyle and tactics. Finally, the FIFA Player Index will help players to achieve more personalized gameplay and make finding a comfortable balance between the attackers, defenders and midfielders. Player Ratings in the game will therefore be based on the player's performance in specific game modes. These new aspects will be the future of FIFA. FIFA 22 will improve further on the all-embracing player model and the game's systems to make your matches more intense and
