I want to pass a boolean as a prop to the Hook component and then use it to remove the event listener. Currently I am using a class component and passing the boolean in the constructor like this constructor(props) { super(props) this.state = {data: ""} this.loadArray = this.loadArray.bind(this) }

loadArray = () => { let queryURL = process.env.REACT_APP_DB_URL + "?" queryURL +=

To determine whether plate- and screw-fixed, unstable, and valgus-impacted canine stifle joints tolerate higher patellofemoral pressures than intact stifles and to assess the effect of tibial plateau leveling on anterior-posterior tibial translation and patellofemoral pressure. 6 cadaveric limbs from 6 dogs. Canine cadaver limbs were randomly assigned to 1 of 3 groups (3 limbs/group). In group 1, a plate and 2 screws were placed in the anterior aspect of the medial tibial plateau, and the tibial plateau was leveled. In group 2, a plate and 2 screws were placed in the anterior aspect of the medial tibial plateau, and the tibial plateau was undersized by 1 mm. In group 3, only the sesamoid bone of the medial tibial plateau was removed, and a plate and 2 screws were placed in the anterior aspect of the medial tibial plateau, and the tibial plateau was leveled. Stifle joint reaction force was recorded using a 6 degrees of freedom apparatus.

Patellofemoral pressure was recorded using a linear variable differential transducer. Maximum anterior-posterior tibial translation was recorded with the limbs in extension, and knee extension was used to assess the range of motion. Tibial plateau leveling, with or without tibial plateau undersizing, caused a 7- to 9-fold increase in maximum patellofemoral pressure, with a similar effect in all limbs.

Plate fixation and tibial plateau leveling, with or without tibial plateau undersizing, caused a 3- to 4-fold increase in the range of motion. Under the conditions of this study, canine stifle joints reacted to plate fixation and tibial plateau leveling with anterior-posterior tibial translation and patellofemoral pressures that were not considered to be detrimental
