The most common type of Photoshop file on the Internet is an Adobe Photoshop file or PSD file. The following sections walk you through basic Photoshop concepts. These tips can help you in your Photoshop journey. Because Photoshop is a complex, time-consuming tool, Photoshop basics need to be done correctly before you create, alter, and manipulate anything. Each layer in Photoshop has an opacity setting that determines the percentage of the image it's covering. Check out Figure 5-1 to see the way that layers interact with one another. When a layer is covered by another layer, it's behind the other layer, and any changes to the first layer are hidden. Figure 5-1: Layers are useful for blending and hiding one element behind another. Imagine that you take a photograph of a tree. You can add a layer that features the tree or overlay another image on top of the existing image, as shown in Figure 5-2. In the figure, the layer containing the tree has been dropped into the image. The original layer is covered by the new layer, and anything you do to the tree will be altered and hidden by the new layer. Figure 5-2: Use layers to add elements to an image, layer them, and adjust them. As you can see in Figure 5-3, the underlying layer is hidden because it is covered by the Tree layer. A layer that's uncovered allows you to see the original layer beneath it. In Figure 5-3, the Background layer is covered by the Tree layer, and the Tree layer is covered by the Background layer. Figure 5-3: Layers that aren't covered by other layers are visible and visible in their entirety. By default, Photoshop has layers that are linked to one another. When you move a layer, any changes you make to that layer are applied to all linked layers. This means that you can drag a layer and move it within an image, and the layer moves with the image, even if that layer is covered by another. You can see this in Figure 5-4. Notice that the shapes in the Front layer appear to overlap the shapes in the background layer, and the background layer appears to overlap the shapes in the background layer. Figure 5-4: Linked layers maintain their relationships to other layers. Using layers There are two different types of layers: normal and Smart layers. Normal layers

In his Telegraph blog, Michael O'Neill, a councillor for the Farnham Royal ward, has lashed out at both Labour figures. He says MPs and candidates are not doing the job of the party and is critical of Mr Miliband, calling him "incompetent" and claims that the country is "not laughing any more" at the Labour leader. His attacks come after the party's disastrous General Election showing. Mr O'Neill wrote: "Behind Labour in any poll is the rather hapless and careerist Ed Balls. "Under his leadership Labour is trying to appeal to the cultural left, while failing to solve their economic problems. "Far from bringing in a new economic policy, Ed Balls once again gives the impression that the party is behaving like the europhiles of Labour in the 1980s. "The Labour party will never be fully reinvigorated until the hapless Ed Balls and his hapless deputy Ed Miliband are removed from the Labour party." Mr O'Neill has also claimed Labour has been "caught" by the "scourge of Labour voter disgust" and called for the immediate resignation of both leaders. He wrote: "The Labour party's fate is in the hands of Labour voters. "But the country has come to realise that Labour is the scourge of the land. "The party has to do more than simply attempt to court these voters back - it has to do things differently. "I would therefore suggest that the Labour party under Ed Miliband be dissolved immediately and a new electoral contest held to identify a new leader." Mr O'Neill added that Labour needs to "give it a shake" and to "re-invigorate the party" with a "clean sweep". "As a lifelong member of the Labour party, I'm no longer able to let any prejudice stand in the way of doing what is best for the party," he wrote. "I believe that the party needs a clean sweep. "I believe that New Labour is corrupt and

Wednesday, April 19, 2008 Missoula Youths Win Youth Soccer Tournament Managed by Billy Burlingame and seconded by Pat Lewis, 16 teams representing nine MHSAA schools met for the finals round of the 2008 Montana State Association of Youth Soccer (MSAYS) High School Tournament this past weekend. Using a newly built playfield, High School Soccer returned to the performance venue at the new Wilmot Sports Complex to host the tournament. Determined to continue their winning ways, the 16 teams battled throughout the weekend. With tremendous support from the community, all the teams in attendance performed with good sportsmanship and grace. With a first-round bye, 7th MSC ranked Jackson State University (MSC) was determined to claim victory. The Lady Cyclones opened the tournament with a 1-0 win over MSC rival Missoula Central Catholic (6th MSC). Jackson State then dropped a 2-1 loss to Central Catholic but rebounded with a 1-0 shutout of MHSAA newcomer Lolo (9th MSC). The Lady Cyclones then had their undefeated season come to an end in a 3-0 loss to Missoula Chaffee (8th MSC). Jackson State, who moved into the finals game with only a one point edge over MSC, bowed out with a 6-1 defeat against 5th ranked U.S. D1 University/Nebraska-Lincoln (8th MSC). The Lady Cyclones saw their season come to an end in a 7-1 defeat to Missoula Lee (2nd MSC). Meanwhile, 4th MSC newcomer-MMS (7th MSC) was on fire. The middle schoolers started things off with a 5-1 win over new MSC rival Lolo. The Knights then easily defeated MSC 1-0 and Central Catholic 3-0. In the event finals, MMS met with second-ranked Finney County (MSC) and picked up their second sweep of the tournament with a 2-1 win. Thus the Knights punched their ticket into tonight's championship game against a tough and experienced foe; Missoula Gradeschool Prep (5th MSC). Although they were unable to topple Finney County on Friday, they were able to get the job done on Saturday. MMS outscored Finney County 2-0 to claim the Montana state title and a wild, and very heated, 3-1 victory against M
