Download 6. How can i solve my problem? A: The problem is likely due to the fact that your controller only has 3 adaptors and that there is only 1 drumkit. The bandwidth of the adaptors can be determined by looking at the manual under MIDI connections, which will tell you which cable is which adaptor, if your MIDI cables aren't labeled. In your case, there are 3 cables; the output is 3B, then there is a 3.5mm adaptor, followed by 3B again. Plug the output of the Midi Out adaptor into the MIDI out on the Drum Kit. If the kit is not recognized, it's probably not compatible with the controller. If you have 4 cables, you'd have to do the same with the 4 cables. 3B, 3.5mm, then 3B again, then the other 3 cables. You'd also have to disconnect the drum kit before connecting the other cables (otherwise you'd be getting drum noise), and test the connection of the cables before pressing the drum kit onto the controller. --- author: Stefan-Stojanovic type: normal category: how to inAlgoPool: false tags: - get-pixel - image processing - px links: - '[JavaScript Reference](' --- # Get Pixel --- ## Content We can get the pixel of an image using the `getPixels` method. ````javascript var img = new Image(); img.src = ""; var pixels = img.getPixels(); console.log(pixels.length); // 22 ```` `getPixels` method returns an array of pixels.
