Many of our best-loved stories are, at best, thrillers of ancient or obscure history. When the true story of the bible is written, no one will be reading it, except for the atheists. But history isn't supposed to be boring. History tells us about the path we took to get where we are today. History is the path we took to get here. History is opportunity to enjoy ideas, to feel out the individuals who helped forge who we are. We should want to know our history, even if it is only so we can appreciate where we are today. And while living in the now is understandable, we can still cherish the past. We can take time to appreciate the past even as we exercise our minds in the present. And even if the past is a little like my church history classes in high school, there's still a lot to enjoy about it. So, let's enjoy some history. Like the history of the discount mall insurance (we know it's an oxymoron): The first discount mall insurance was formed in 1946. Copp's Insurance Associates founded a company called Discount Mall Insurance to help store owners insure their malls. Copp's was a typical insurance company, with its own agent network, offices, and physical offices. In the late 50s, discounts for insurance were not taken very seriously by the insurance companies. No one thought about the connection between consumer behavior and the insurance industry. Then the economy tanked in the 60s, the oil crisis of the 70s and 80s and the savings and loan disaster of the 80s created changes in the insurance industry. Consumers started to look for insurance discounts, and they did so in their droves. In 1984, Copp's was the first mall insurer to bring in a marketing firm to train its agents on how to sell insurance to the public. After that, the insurance industry learned that insurance discounts were as important as good merchandise, and that insurance and mall operations were two things that didn't mix, so the companies stopped competing

I have a Db2 SQL select statement: Select COL1, COL2, COL3 from MYVIEW I want to create an index like this on myview in SQL Server: CREATE NONCLUSTERED INDEX IX_MYVIEW ON MYVIEW (COL1) Is it possible to create an SQL Server index for a SQL Server view from Db2? A: I do not think that there is such a thing. Since you are mixing SQL Server and Db2 (the first line of your question), then I guess you're interested in at least one of them. Can a Db2 SQL view be indexed in Db2 and SQL Server? No, it cannot. What must I do if I want to store precomputed aggregates (such as sums, averages, etc.) in the database in a manner that is efficient and meets the requirements of the ETL jobs? Use temporary tables or collections. A view is not designed to store aggregate results. That is why you see use of temporary tables in the above. Q: Improve the speed of this Python code I was wondering if there's a better way to improve the speed of the following code: for age in ('20,30,40,50,60'): a=0 for infile in sys.argv[2:]: f = open(infile,'r') data=f.read() data=data.split() data=data[0:len(data)-1] for each in data: if each.find("young")!= -1: a=a+1 print (a) In particular I want to avoid 0cc13bf012

Inhibitory effect of metformin on hepatic lipid accumulation in rats fed a high-fat diet. Obesity-related diseases are a leading cause of death in the USA, and there is no effective treatment. Metformin (Met) reduces fat accumulation in rat liver, however, it remains unclear how Met inhibits hepatic lipid accumulation. To investigate, rats were fed a high-fat diet (HFD) or a standard diet (STD) and then treated with Met for a period of 14 days. Liver index, steatosis, triglyceride, cholesterol, and phospholipid content were measured to determine the effect of Met on liver structure and lipid accumulation. Expression of fatty acid synthase, sterol regulatory element-binding protein 1c, acetyl-CoA carboxylase, and peroxisome proliferator-activated receptor alpha genes was investigated by real-time RT-PCR. Hepatic triglyceride was significantly reduced by Met in both rats, and its activity was activated by the administration of Met for 14 days. Total cholesterol and cholesterol ester were also significantly decreased in the liver of HFD-fed rats. Hepatic phospholipids were significantly increased in STD-fed rats, whereas they were decreased in HFD-fed rats. In STD-fed rats, Met inhibited the expression of fatty acid synthase and acetyl-CoA carboxylase genes. In contrast, the expression of sterol regulatory element-binding protein 1c and peroxisome proliferator-activated receptor alpha were increased in HFD-fed rats. These findings indicate that Met prevents or delays fatty liver development in rats fed a high-fat diet, resulting in the relief of obesity-related hepatic fat accumulation.
