not long ago, there was talk about a documentary about the carpenters. this project is now fully in the works and it's called 'the tale of the carpenters'. in the near future, there will be a trailer. john is releasing an anniversary album. it's called carpenters the greatest hits collection (amazon u.s. / amazon u.k. / amazon canada) and it's out on october 16, 2017. it's a sort of mash-up of all the carpenters' hits on one record and it contains a lot of bonus tracks. the '70s were their most successful decade, with the band's first three albums (a song for you, close to you and superstar) each selling over a million copies in the u.s. close to you went triple-platinum and superstar sold 1.8 million. in total, the carpenters sold over 35 million albums during their career. the carpenters charted eight more top-40 hits over the next decade, including the #1 hit a love like yours. the band continued to have success throughout the '80s. eternal sunshine of the spotless mind is one of the carpenters' final chart hits, topping out at #36 in the u.s. just a song for you went to #1 in canada and reached #3 in the u.k. the album was certified double-platinum in the u., canada and switzerland. the chart show on sesame street was a big part of what the carpenters were famous for, and the duo's appearance on the show's first episode on september 9, 1969 made them instant national stars. joel and karen's version of their hit single, kumbaya, became the show's signature song, and their rendition of the first-season theme song, "rainbow connection," was included on their third capitol album, carpenters '70. unlike their other albums, this album was a departure in sound and focus. the pair were joined by a full orchestra and had input in the arrangement of their songs. joel had a hand in the writing of kumbaya and rainbow connection, and the album's leadoff single, tammy, would be the carpenters' last top 10 hit until "lost without your love" in 1992. despite the album's departure, joel had a hand in the next four singles, starting with close to you, which he wrote. he also co-wrote the second and third singles, you've lost that lovin' feelin' and we've only just begun, with the latter bringing the carpenters their second grammy win.
