some examples of the experimental data for the activation cross-sections of fast-neutron induced nuclear reactions, for which new experimental data are reported, are given. the results are compared with evaluated or evaluated experimental data, if available. the recommended evaluation procedures are described in details. the results obtained with a large number of secondary standards are given for various fission products of cross sections and for the activation cross-sections of neutrons induced nuclear reactions. activation cross-sections for $n + {}^{103}\text{Pd}$ and ${}^{103}\text{Sb}$ were calculated by using the bsa, based on the above evaluated data, and new experimental data. the recommended evaluation procedures are described in details. the results obtained with a large number of secondary standards are given for various fission products of cross sections and for the activation cross-sections of neutrons induced nuclear reactions. the facility of the tecdoc can be accessed from the home page of the iaea by using the . the tecdoc contains various materials, i.e., the iaea-mtcd manual, the iaea-mtcd help, the iaea manual for the evaluation of naa and neutron sources, and the iaea manual for the evaluation of p-li neutron sources. the iaea carried out the fe and al evaluations in the tecdoc. the recommended evaluation procedures are described in details. the results obtained with a large number of secondary standards are given for various fission products of cross sections and for the activation cross-sections of neutrons induced nuclear reactions. the evaluation data are compared with evaluated or evaluated experimental data, if available. the data are collected in the tecdoc.
