Searching for a way to make smart previews available for clients but there doesn't appear to be a method. What I would like to be able to do is have the smart previews in the advanced palette and place them under the perspective options of a layer group but I don't know if that's possible. I could also create a layer group with a smart preview for converting and duplicate that layer and take it off the original layer.

I am doing a photoshop app for my husband recently so I don't really get to Photoshop much anymore as it is something I find uninteresting. I'm trying to drum up more business with it for him. Thanks for posting such a great information in your blog. It is quite appreciated.

<http://wp.to/bVYrl> I am trying to use smart previews in photoshop so I can get feedback from multiple people. I cannot get any of the previews to display. I have photoshop cs6 on a win 7 pro machine. I installed the 30 day trial version of the photoshop toolkit plugin and updated the plugin owners to 2.01 25-AUG-2015 however, when I click "tools" it does not display the smart previews that people have in photoshop and no I do not use the addons at all. No matter what I do I get nothing but a blank. please help. This is killing me got to figure out this smart preview thing. I've been using a similar method for about a year.

Using the www.galm.com site you can upload and download smart previews (DNG, TIFF, JPG) with the comments from trialing or production.

Once you create a smart preview you simply drag it into the order palette.

Drag the preview file, the geowizard test file, etc. into the order tab, then drag it into the layout tab to use it.

If you're having a delay with the preview, open the PSD file in Adobe Bridge then use the "Export Preferences" command in Bridge to open with Photoshop.

Setting the export image quality to "HIGH QUALITY" will bypass the preview.
