I have a dataset that contains several groups. Within each group I have a values that are being plotted using facet_wrap, but I want to order the groups randomly per chart, and also have the group names assigned automatically. Here's an example:
library(ggplot2) dataset <- data.frame(x = rnorm(5000), y = rnorm(5000), z = rnorm(5000), groups = c("a", "b", "c", "d", "e")) dataset ggplot(dataset, aes(x=x, y=y, fill = groups)) + geom_bar(position="dodge") + facet_wrap(~groups, ncol=5, scales = "free") And the result is this: But what I want is this: where "A" is between "C" and "D", and "E" is between "C" and "D". I can't seem to find a proper way to do this (if there's a way).
Thanks! A: I modified your code a bit. First, to assign a group name, we need to use setNames in a different way.
setNames(strsplit(as.character(dataset$groups), ","), sort(unique(unlist(strsplit(as.character(dataset$groups),","))))) We get [1] "a" "b" "c" "d" "e" Next, we need to randomly assign a group
